

MEET OUR BLOG!

www.TyndaleUSA.com/blog

With more than 35 years – and counting! – of experience with arc-rated flame resistant clothing (FRC), managed apparel programs, and active participation in organizations establishing safety standards and test methods, Tyndale's expertise is virtually unmatched in the industry. We're pleased to share our wealth of information through our industry-leading blog.

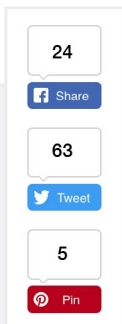

Available through our online FR Safety library at TyndaleUSA.com/blog, our blog is your one-stop destination for information about new FRC products, an inside look at new Tyndale services, answers to frequently-asked questions, information about safety standards and test methods, industry updates and trends, FRC best practices and training materials, arc flash and flash fire demonstrations, and more. You'll even find helpful videos and downloadable resources.

You'll also get a closer look at Tyndale: who we are, what we do, our facilities and locations, our status as a certified woman-owned business and award-winning workplace, our commitment to health and safety, our efforts toward sustainability, and our dedication to giving back to the communities in which we live and work.

Select a Post:

Simply click on a post to read more, view supporting resources like videos or downloadable documents, and leave a comment. You can use the buttons to "like" the post or share directly to Facebook, Twitter, or Pinterest.

Want to Stay in the Know?

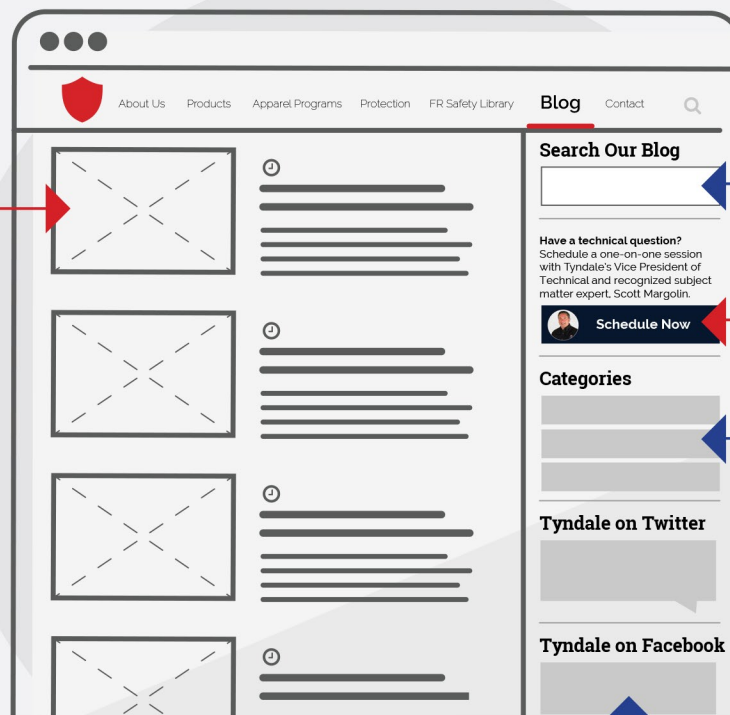

Preview our Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram feeds right on our blog, and click to follow us on each channel.

Looking for Something Specific?

- Use our Search box to query hundreds of posts.
- You can also find posts by Category.

Need Help With a Technical Challenge?

Schedule a complimentary consultation with Scott Margolin, Vice President of Technical, a recognized subject matter expert in arc-rated flame resistant fabrics, garments, standards and testing.

Have a question we haven't answered yet? Reach out to us at MarketingInfo@TyndaleUSA.com.

Be sure to check back often – new content and videos are continually being added!

